ALLEN ACADEMY TO ADD*MILITARY FEATURE

Students of This Splendid School to Be Given Modified Military Training.

Beginning with the opening in September the Allen Academy will introduce into the school a modified form of military drill and discipline. The principles do not contemplate any radical change in the established policy of the school as to the matter of government, in which the Academy has been notably successful from the time of its establishment. But there are certain very desirable results, both as to the formation of proper habits and as to the details of school administration, which are secured by military training. Such a system unquestionably promotes promptness, order, neatness, respect, and obedience to law and authority; and it is the most effective means of straightening up and rounding out a boy physically. In the matter of exercise and physical development, athletes appeal to only a certain per cent of a school; required systematic gymnasium work, valuable as it is, soon becomes perfunctory and even distasteful to the average boy; but military drill under a competent man appeals to a boy and he enters into it with spirit because he likes it.

Recognizing these valuable results of military training, the principals of the Academy have for some time been contemplating its introduction. The successful inauguration of the same depends very largely upon finding the right man for commandant. The principals believe they have been fortunate in securing for this position a man who has had several years successful experience as commandant and who is at the same time a trained teacher and an experienced school man. Col. W. G. Martin is a graduate of one of the best military colleges in the country; he has been for eight years commandant of cadets in a boys' military school, and he has had large experience in dormitory life and in school administration. Col. Martin is spending the summer in the Oglethorpe Military Training Camp in Georgia, from which he will return fresh for his duties in the Academy in September.

The details of the plans are yet to be worked out. But this much has been determined—that there will be military organization in the school, that there will be a definite number of hours of real military drill, and that the daily program of the school will be worked out to secure that degree of order, promptness and system which ought to characterize military movements. Red tape will be avoided. The aim will be to secure the spirit without unduly emphasizing the forms of military discipline.
